Next week will be a very "green" one in Hoboken.

In the days leading up to the city's first Green Fair, several educational workshops are planned on a variety of topics to provide residents with an understanding of how environmental awareness can affect their everyday lives.

Many of the workshops are free to attend and take place at night. The fair is currently scheduled for Sat., April 21 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Pier A Park along the Hoboken waterfront featuring music, organic food vendors, and information on how you can become more environmentally conscious.

The city and the Hoboken Green Team are sponsoring the fair

Here is a list of events that will take place during Earth Week:

-- Monday, April 15: Urban Agriculture and Composting workshop hosted by Sustainable Jersey City and Committee for a Green Hoboken at 6:30 p.m. at HOPES Center, located at 124 Grand St. There is a suggested $10 donation for those attending.

-- Tuesday, April 17: Home Energy Conservation workshop hosted by Green Living Solutions at 6:30 p.m. at the Jubilee Center, located at 601 Jackson St. This workshop is free to attend.

-- Wednesday, April 18: Viewing of the movie Earth Days at 6:30 p.m. at Willie McBride's, located
